WOULD-BE FARMERS DISAGREE

Mrs. Scott Durand Charges Conspiracy to Put Her Out of Business

TRAP INSPECTORS BY WIT

After Ten of Her Cattle Herd Was Condemned, Mrs. Durand Shipped Them to Stock Yards Where They Passed

Alleging a conspiracy between Arthur Meeker of the Armour Packing company and the government meat inspectors of Chicago to force her to cease operating her famous dairy, Crabtree farm, Lake Bluff, Mrs. Scott Durand, permanent society woman and philanthropist, has filed with Representative Nelson of Wisconsin a statement relating how they utilized the meat inspection service of the United States department of agriculture in an effort to put her famous dairy out of existence because he regarded her as a rival.

In addition Mrs. Durand tells how by wit she trapped the government inspectors sent by Meeker to condemn her herd and how they actually inspected and passed for Armour & Co's warehouse cows which they had condemned as tubercular on her farm. So important is the testimony offered by Mrs. Durand that she has been summoned as a witness and will take the stand some time this week.

Mrs. Durand charges that Meeker boasted "he would put me out of business," that inspectors from the stock yards condemned ten of her seventy cows, which had been tested frequently by veterinarians, that they ordered them killed; that she sent them secretly to Armour's plant and the inspectors not knowing they had previously been condemned thereupon passed them for food.

"Either influence was brought to bear to drive me out of the dairy business by having my valuable prize cattle condemned and destroyed or else the meat was diseased and was passed as healthy by the government inspectors at the Armour plant and then was sold to the public.

The whole scheme was unfair and dishonest. The fact that the condemned cattle were passed as healthy after they were killed shows that either my cows were condemned as a part of a conspiracy or that the federal inspectors are so inefficient that they failed to condemn one of ten diseased cattle in a single lot.

"In either event, Mr. Meeker has a very serious condition of affairs to explain. The charges were filed by me at the invitation of the members of the committee and my purpose was primarily to help put a stop to the abuses in the meat inspection service.

"I do not intend to sell any more milk in Chicago and will confine myself to breeding prize cattle. The heavy loss resulting from the fire at my farm and the bitter warfare that Mr. Meeker has waged against me have been very disheartening. I will not descend to 'stockyard methods' to compete against Mr. Meeker in the milk business," said Mrs. Durand.

Meeker denied that he had done the things charged by Mrs. Durand. "I heard of the charges Mrs. Durand made," said Mr. Meeker, "but they are too absurd to deny. There is absolutely not the slightest foundation for what she says. I'll not discuss it and a statement isn't necessary as that would give the affair more importance than it deserves."

DESTROY DANDELIONS BY SPRAYING

The Illinois Farmer's Institute Press bulletin recently issued a statement regarding the destruction of dandelions. Spray the lawn or badly infested area every ten days with a spray solution made by dissolving one and three quarters pounds of copperas in a gallon of water. Apply this with a sprayer that has a strong pressure so that a fine mist-like spray is formed. Use when the day is warm and bright. If the first few sprayings seem to produce no effect make the solution slightly stronger. The lawn grass may be somewhat blackened, but no permanent damage results. Be careful to keep spray off of cement walks as it discolors them.

TO INCORPORATE BRISTOL

Village to Lay Aside Swaddling Clothes in the Near Future

The people of the village of Bristol are planning to lay aside the swaddling clothes they have, to take on trousers that they know not of. The village is planning to secede from the town of Bristol and incorporate under the new state law. In a short time the people of the village hope to have their own mayor and village council and take an equal rank with the city of Kenosha in the county. Attorneys have been retained to look after the legal end of the incorporation of the village and as soon as possible the work will be complete and Bristol will have the distinction of being the first incorporated village in the county.

For years the incorporation of the village has been held back on account of population requirements, but at the last session of the legislature the law relating to the incorporation of the villages was amended so as to give any village with a population of 150 the right to put aside the restraints of town government and begin enacting laws for itself. Many of the people of the village are enthusiastic over the idea of laying aside the swaddling clothes but a few of them are a little fearful that the new organization will bring responsibilities and expenses which will be hard for them to bear. But the idea is cast and Bristol is going to become a separate community from the rest of the town.

CHOP DOWN SIGN BOARDS

Vollva Will Now Erect Sign Boards That Are Made of Steel

Every Saturday as regular as the day comes around, signs are destroyed in Zion City. Usually the method used is fire and oil, but the rain on Saturday made this impossible. The ax was used.

Now Vollva is real peeved and he says that he will erect fifty steel sign boards.

"I shall construct fifty steel signs," he said, impressively. "Time, nor fire, nor flood shall destroy them. As for these skunks who abuse me, I shall notify them that my signs are to be guarded, and assailants may carry buckshot away with them. That is what they deserve."

Aside from the signs near Zion Home, the overseer showed the greatest regret over the demolition of the veteran of all the signs, standing near the depot and warning all newcomers that in Zion City there should be "no tobacco, no whiskey, no beer, no theaters, no dances, no drugs, no oysters, no pork."

The third sign commenting vividly on the low down nature of any one who would use tobacco in Zion, stood facing the office of Wm. Fabry, an Independent lawyer.

FROM FOX LAKE TO MISSISSIPPI IS LATEST PLAN

Chicago and Elgin will join in a movement to make the Fox river a navigable stream.

Petitions addressed to Congressman Copley asking his aid in securing an appropriation from congress, being circulated in Elgin, Dundee and Algonquin marks the first step in the campaign.

It is hoped to have the Fox river between Elgin and McHenry dredged within the next two years—to make a complete waterway to the chain of lakes. The cost of this is roughly estimated at $1,000,000. Only a few miles will have to be dredged and there is now a government dredge at Fox lake.

When a few miles have been dredged it will mean 100 miles of waterway north of Elgin to Fox Lake, Platteville Bay and the scores of other lakes in northern part of the state and southern Wisconsin.

COUNTY JUDGE HAS NAMED BOARD OF REVIEW

Tuesday County Judge Perry L. Persons appointed the board of review for Lake county for the ensuing spring's work, as follows:

Republican—John G. Boess, of Lake Bluff, Shields, township.
Democrat—Charles J. Wightman of Grayslake, Avon township.

The third member of the board is the chairman of the supervisors, the chairman this year being T. M. Clarke of Highland Park, Deerfield township. He is a Republican.

The clerk and assistant clerk is selected by the board members and the judge has nothing to do with naming them. The salary of the board members is $5.00 a day, also for the clerk, while the assistant clerk gets $3.50 a day.

KANE CO. BIDS FOR DONATION

Neighboring County Among First to Apply for Share of Fund

LAKE HAS NOT ACTED YET

Sears Roebuck Will Give $1,000 to Each of the First 100 Counties Applying for Same and Complying With Conditions

Kane county will have a demonstration farm and agricultural expert at once.

J. P. Mason leader of the movement and Guy Phillips of Aurora, president of the Kane County Farmers' Institute, Monday put in Kane county's bid for $1,000 of the $100,000 fund donated Saturday by Sears Roebuck and company of Chicago, to be distributed among the first 100 counties in the west and middle west applying for same.

The plan in brief is to place an agricultural expert in each county. It will be his duty to study local conditions and to suggest plans for scientific management for the purpose of obtaining a larger yield of better grain per acre than is now harvested.

He will act as general adviser on agricultural matters, organize farmers' clubs, arrange farm exhibits, and co-operate with the school authorities in teaching the rudiments of agriculture.

It shall be his duty to aid the farmers in every way and to establish seed plots both on the county farm and in various parts of the county on private farms to breed up to the highest efficiency, the variety of grain which may be best adapted to the soil and climate of the county, so that eventually a single uniform variety which may be free from mixture of other grains and seeds of noxious weeds will be produced.

The $1000 gift will not be sufficient. It is expected that the salary of an expert will be $2,500 alone. The counties are expected to raise the balance and they will have to show their earnestness to do this before they will receive their pro rata share of the donation.

To obtain its share, each county must have a certain fund subscribed. This sum is to be collected by the strongest organization in each county and must equal annually 1 per cent per acre of all tillable soil in the county or a minimum of $100 from each township to be subscribed by the farmers. An equal amount must be contributed by the commercial club, merchants, manufacturers, bankers and business interests of the county.

This offer was no doubt originated by a desire to advertise the big mail order house and it will without question be one of the most lasting of advertising stunts and if the fund is expended to the satisfaction of the donors it will be increased to a full million dollars available for 1000 counties. So far Lake has taken no steps toward applying for the $1,000 apportionment but many prominent farmers are asking "Why Not?" and it may be that some move will yet be made toward emulating the act of our neighboring county.

WAUKEGAN TO CELEBRATE THE FOURTH OF JULY

Plans are now well under way for the biggest and best celebration on the Fourth of July this year that Waukegan has ever seen and it will be more in the nature of a home coming than anything else.

Letters will be sent to all old Waukegan residents and an effort will be made to get back there for the glorious Fourth.

The home coming is a new venture in connection with the Fourth of July celebration and the commissioners and the members of the committee representing the Women's Federation of Waukegan are planning for a big event. A meeting was held and the heads of the committees were appointed.

UNABLE TO LOCATE BODIES

Searching Parties Have So Far Been Unsuccessful in Efforts

SEARCH IS STILL CONTINUED

Every Means Is Being Used and Searchers Declare They Will Not Give Up Until all are Recovered

Although searching parties have patrolled Fox Lake constantly since the drowning accident of the 8th, no trace of the bodies of the six men have so far been found.

A large sein was employed in the search and it was not thought possible that this would fail to locate the bodies, but a thorough trial resulted in finding nothing further than a couple of pocket books belonging to some of the party.

The possibility that the bodies might have been carried into Nippersink lake by the strong current has caused that lake to be dragged but without result. The strong wind that has blown across the lake has handicapped the searchers to a considerable extent. It is announced however that the search will not be given up until the bodies are recovered.

As a last resort dynamite will be used in an effort to raise the bodies. The water is between forty and fifty feet deep at the place where the launch is supposed to have gone down.

This is one of most terrible accidents to happen on any of our numerous lakes in many years, and coming as it does just at the opening of the season has created a sensation in the entire lake region and the shores of Fox Lake are daily swarmed with anxious friends and relatives eager to learn of the first discovery. Beside the large number who are aiding in the search.

HIGHWOOD BOY THREATENS TO SHOOT MAYOR

Because his father, Frank Bell, was fined $150 for permitting him to sell liquor in Highwood, Clarence Bell came near causing the death of Marshal L. K. Heustis Monday when he shot the window of the city hall full of holes, in an effort to shoot the mayor.

The son is a small boy but in some manner or other he secured a revolver and Monday marched down the streets of Highwood flourishing the weapon and shooting right and left. He shot through the windows in the city hall, and the Marshal L. K. Heustis narrowly escaped instant death at the hands of the lad.

The city officials at Highwood are bound and determined to stop the illegal selling of liquor there and they are taking every step to do so. Mayor Seligerson has stated that he will stop this practice and he is doing all in his power to do so. The remainder of the city force are also with them and they plan to clean up Highwood in fine shape.

It is said that the boy was after the mayor with his gun and that he has stated that he would "get" him for what he did to his father. While the mayor and the city officials are not shocked by this threat, they are to keep on their guard.

APPROPRIATE EXERCISES FOR DECORATION DAY

A meeting was held this week by the local members of the G. A. R. to make arrangements for appropriate exercises to be observed on Decoration Day, Thursday, May 30. At the cemetery a short service will be held after the decoration of the graves, the school children will sing and Rev. Stixrud will make a short address. The parade will form on Main street at 8:30 o'clock. All the citizens of Antioch and vicinity are invited to honor the "Boys in Blue," both living and dead, by taking part in the parade and exercises. It is requested by the soldiers that all places of business be closed on Decoration Day between the hours of 8:30 and 10:00 a. m. The annual memorial service will be observed in the M. E. church on Sunday, May 26, at 10:40 a. m. The soldiers will attend in a body and Rev. Stixrud will preach a sermon on "The Higher Soldiership."

EDWIN B. LAKE ARRESTED

Former Employee of the Public Service Company Arrested

Edwin B. Lake, formerly employed by the Public Service Company of Northern Illinois in Waukegan has been arrested in Chicago charged with burglary and also with operating a confidence game.

Mr. Lake is the son of Charles Lake, 4018 Sheridan Road, Chicago, one of the best known families in the city. The young man worked for many years in Waukegan and has many friends.

Mr. Lake stated at the police station that his downfall was the result of drink and a desire for money. When he was in Waukegan he moved in the best society and was well liked by all. His Waukegan friends will regret to learn that he has been arrested on so serious a charge.

Mr. Lake was a married man and his wife is also known to many. The hearing on the case has been set for May 21. His acquaintances will await the result of his trial with great interest.

Lake is said by the police to have admitted his guilt and to have blamed drink and gambling for his trouble. He is said to have passed several worthless checks and W. C. Morris, manager of the American Woodworking Machinery Company, 565 West Washington street, Chicago, says he caught Lake ransacking a desk he had broken open in the company's office.

Lake will be remembered in Antioch as the advance guard of the North Shore Electric Company for the purchase of Antioch Electric Light and Power Co., and while here made many friends who are sorry to hear of his downfall.

SIGNS NEW PENSION BILL

Graded Scale Based on The Service Increases With Age of Recipient

The president Saturday night signed the increased pension bill, passed by the house and senate. The measure was signed and became a law just before midnight, in the executive offices at the White House.

It is estimated the bill will add about $27,000,000 the first year to the existing pension budget, decreasing gradually each year.

The bill provides that a soldier, 60 years of age, with a service record of two and a half years in the Civil or Mexican wars, shall receive a pension of $18 per month; with three years service, $19 per month.

At 70 years of age and one and one-half years of service the veteran is to be paid $21.50 per month; with two years, $23 per month; two and a half years, $25; three years, $25 per month.

At 75 years of age, having served one and one-half years he will receive $27 per month; two years and over $30 per month.

STARTS SUIT FOR $10,000 AGAINST RAILWAY CO.

Claiming damages in the sum of $10,000, W. P. Higley of Waukegan has brought suit against the Chicago City Railway company, charging them with having been indirectly responsible for the death of his wife.

Mrs. Higley, her husband claims, had her arm broken when a conductor employed by the railway company, signaled the motorman to start the car before Mrs. Higley had gained the car platform.

It will be recalled that the accident happened about three years ago. Mrs. Higley, with her daughter, was riding through Chicago. She had not been well and when she started to alight from the car she did not step down as quickly as she might if she had been in good health. The conductor, it is charged, gave the signal for the car to start ahead and Mrs. Higley was hurled to the pavement.

Power of a Word.

A single word was often sufficient for Talleyrand to make his keenest retort. When a hypochondriac, who had notoriously led a profligate life, complained to the diplomat that he was enduring the tortures of "all Talleyrand simply answered, "All ready?"

To a woman who had lost her husband Talleyrand once addressed a letter of condolence in two words: "Oh, madame!"

In less than a year the woman had married again, and then his letter of congratulations was: "Ah, madame!"—Kansas City Star.

WOODMEN SAVED SAYS HEYDECKER

Substitute Measure of Donahue Bill Passed Senate Wednesday Morning

PROVIDES FOR REFERENDUM

1,000,000 Woodmen Will Have Privilege by This Bill of Voting on the Rate Increase Measure

Rather than permit the defeat of the Donahue bill, preventing the rate increase proposed by the Modern Woodmen of America the insurgent faction, of which C. T. Heydecker of Waukegan is a member, Tuesday, drafted a substitute measure, which passed the senate at an early hour Wednesday morning.

The substitute bill was presented in the senate Tuesday evening and advanced to a third reading. The Donahue bill, already passed by the house, which reported adversely to the senate insurance committee, was sidetracked.

The main feature of the substitute bill, passed by the senate Wednesday morning is a provision for a referendum by which members of the Woodman lodge may express their approval or disapproval of the rate increase. The rate increase shall become effective for old members next January 1st, as ordered by the society unless a majority vote of the total membership, which numbers more than 1,000,000, shall vote against it.

The compromise is considered rather to the advantage of the officers of the Woodmen as it will be a difficult task to obtain the votes of more than 500,000 members. The state insurance superintendent, the state superintendent of public instructions and the state treasurer are constituted as a board to which dissatisfied members may appeal if they feel the officers do not conduct the referendum properly.

It was feared Tuesday night that the house would kill all bills because of the bad feeling which existed.

THIEF POISONS WATCH DOG BEFORE ENTERING RESIDENCE

Lake Forest has just been visited by an exceedingly clever burglar and although he did not secure much for his pains it was not because his plans did not work out successfully. His plan in short, was to poison the watch dog so that he could not "be on the job" when he got ready to make a raid.

The place selected was the home of Frank Bulow. The robbery is supposed to have been committed Sunday evening about 11 o'clock while the family were away from home. When they arrived home a short time later the first thing they noticed was that the dining room window was open. A hurried search inside the house revealed the fact that the thief had made a hurried search of the house. Everything had been turned "topsy turvy" in the search for money and valuables but so far as known all the thief got for his trouble was $5 in cash which had been left lying on a dressing table and a new suit case. He either was frightened away or made up his mind that there were no more valuables in the place.

In taking the valuable leather suit case, the robber showed an evident intention to be "fair" for he followed the old saying, "Even exchange is no robbery." He left an old dilapidated suit case that he evidently had taken along for the purpose of carrying away any loot he might get.

The Bulow's have a fox terrier which has a reputation of being the best watch dog in the neighborhood. On Saturday he was taken severely ill and was locked up in the kitchen on Sunday when the family went away. It is now believed that the robber had carefully premeditated this robbery and fed the dog some poisoned meat on Saturday so that he would be out of his way when he robbed the house. The plan worked out all right, though, for while the dog did not die he was so ill that he paid no attention to the burglar who had everything his own way.

The Lake Forest police are looking for the thief, but because he left no clue have little hope of running him down.

LUCK AND ABILITY

Ellis H. Roberts Was Credited With Having Both.

EX-TREASURER YET ACTIVE

Reminiscences of His Feud With Roscoe Conkling and His Final Victory—Plan to Establish American Hospital in Paris.

By GEORGE CLINTON.

Washington.—In the different department buildings of the government there are hanging on the walls pictures of former officials whose work was done in the rooms which their portraits adorn. In the war department pictures of the former secretaries of war hang on the walls of the rooms used directly by the present secretary, Henry L. Stimson. They are fine old portraits, most of them, and they represent a line of men from the days of the foundation of the government until the present hour.

By general admission, the finest work of art in the collection is the portrait of Jefferson Davis, who was president of the Confederacy and who at one time held the cabinet position of secretary of war. In the treasury department there are portraits not only of former secretaries of the treasury, but also of former controllers of the currency and former treasurers of the United States and of other men in high official position.

Until a few years ago Ellis H. Roberts of Utica, N. Y., was treasurer of the United States. Mr. Roberts is still living and enjoying a virile old age. He was a keen politician and was known as one of the scholars in politics. He is approaching ninety years of age and yet he is still making addresses upon governmental subjects and upon subjects of historical interest. It used to be said of Mr. Roberts in Washington that he had a luck stone in his pocket and ability in his head all through his public career.

Feud Between Roberts and Conkling. Roscoe Conkling, one of the famous senators of the United States, was from Utica, and Conkling and Roberts, although both Republicans, were very much at odds. For years and years Conkling tried to put Roberts down and out, but at the end, it is said, Roberts had as much to do with putting Conkling down and out as any other man in public life, unless President Garfield he excepted.

Early in life Roberts and Conkling, as the Washington story goes, were the best possible friends. Roberts was the editor of a newspaper now no longer in existence, but in its day one of the ablest journals in New York state. Conkling and Roberts fell out. The Conkling influence defeated Roberts for Congress. He was immediately appointed assistant treasurer of the United States at New York city. Almost as soon as this appointment was made Roscoe Conkling and Thomas C. Platt resigned from the senate of the United States because they resented another appointment made by President Garfield. They asked the legislature of New York to vindicate them by returning them to the senate. The influence of Roberts and his paper helped to kill Conkling politically for all time, and to kill Platt for a season.

Later when Conkling had been out of the political arena for some time, Roberts, who had held a good office all the time, was made treasurer of the United States. Platt came back into political life and became for a time chief of the Republican party in New York state. Conkling and Platt are both dead, but Ellis H. Roberts is alive and vigorous and apparently it does not need his picture in the treasury department to recall to Washington men some of the stories of his life while he was in the midst of public affairs.

Sherman Can't Get Away.

The vice president of the United States, James S. Sherman, is perhaps in one way not the happiest man this republic claims among its citizenship. Although he is the second officer in the government, he finds that he is virtually chained to his seat except on those rare occasions when the imperative call of duty to his private concerns or his family makes him arrange things so that he can get away.

The senate of the United States has no president pro tem. Senator William P. Frye of Maine, who was the duly elected presiding officer to act in the absence of the vice president, died last summer, and ever since congress came together the senate has been trying without success to elect Mr. Frye's successor. The progressive Republicans want one senator named for the place and the conservative Republicans want another, while the Democrats stand by a third candidate. The result has been a deadlock which has prevented the election of any man to take Senator Frye's place. There is no immediate prospect that an election can be forced, for neither side to the controversy seems to be willing to yield.

His Vote Might Be Needed.

As a result of this trouble the vice president finds it difficult to get away from Washington. The Republican majority in the senate is small and such as it is, it is divided against itself and so the conservative Republicans object to having Mr. Sherman away when anything of importance is going to come to a vote for fear that his vote might be necessary to carry the day for them in case there were a tie, for the vice president of the United States has no voice in the government except when it is used to say yes or nay on some question on which the vote in the upper house is equal between the two sides.

Mr. Sherman did go away for a few days recently, and a Democratic senator was appointed president pro tem, but the Republicans took good care that during the time of leave nothing should come to a vote which was of the least legislative importance. Mr. Sherman sits in the chair now almost with the "continuous regularity" with which Mr. Fairbanks sat in it. The former vice president was away from his duties in the senate on only two occasions during the four years of his incumbency.

Jokes of the Senators.

The senate of the United States is reported generally as the staidest kind of a body. It is seldom that any jokes are cracked on the floor of the upper house, but occasionally there is an approach to humor, or an attempt at humor on the part of some senator in a speech, and then there are likely to be smiles, but there is never anything approaching even the giggle which precedes laughter.

In the quiet of their committee rooms senators occasionally tell stories and a good many of them have to do with men whom they have known in public life but who are dead and gone. Other stories have to do with their experiences as senators in their dealings with their constituents, especially such dealings as are had through correspondence.

Senators and representatives both are a willing lot, but occasionally there is a limit. A senator from Michigan told some of his committee room comrades the other day that he had received a letter which he thought approached the extreme of assurance. This letter, he said, was from a clerk in one of the departments and it virtually ordered the senator—the order being based on the ground that the man who issued it hailed from the state of Michigan—to call upon the superintendent of the division in which the letter writer was a clerk, and tell him to have the clerk's desk moved so that he could spend the time when he was not at work in looking out of the window. The senator vouched for the truthfulness of this story.

Platt's Modesty Shocked.

The other day a member of the upper house told a story of Senator Foraker of Ohio and ex-Senator Platt of Connecticut who died some years ago. Mr. Platt was known as the most modest man who ever had a seat in congress. He was modest to the shrinkling point. The story ran like this:

"When Senator Foraker was making his speech against the proposal to admit Arizona and New Mexico as one state he quoted from arguments made by Senator Platt, who years ago on the floor of the senate declared that Dakota was too large to be admitted as one commonwealth and that it should be split in twain. The Ohio senator started in thus: 'The senator from Connecticut, Mr. Platt—'

"At this instant the main door of the senate chamber opened and Senator Platt appeared and started slowly down the center aisle. He had not heard his name as it fell from the lips of Senator Foraker. Senator Foraker continued: 'One of the most villain-minded, one of the ablest senators who ever held membership in this body—'

"Senator Platt had advanced ten feet. Every eye was upon him. Senator Foraker continued: 'A man known to the country for his distinguished services—a man known for the fine quality of his mind—'

"Senator Platt was now within ten feet of the front row of senatorial desks. His eyes were still upon him, and in them and below them was silent laughter.

"Senator Foraker went on: 'A man whose opinion upon questions of moment carries weight always and conviction nearly always. I go not astray when I seek the words of the eminent senator from Connecticut—'

"Senator Platt had been listening without suspicion. His name heard, he fairly folded his towering form, fell into a seat and there sat shivering from the shock to his Connecticut modesty.

Morgan Had Fun With Gallinger.

Another story was told of Senator Gallinger of New Hampshire who is still in the senate and Senator Morgan of Alabama who died not long ago at an advanced age. The bill to admit Oklahoma as a state was under discussion and Senator Gallinger had introduced an amendment providing that no intoxicating liquor should be sold in the new state for twenty-one years. Then the Alabama senator rose in his seat and solemnly proposed to Mr. Gallinger's amendment—an amendment to the effect that no one should sell or give intoxicating drinks to the inhabitants of the new state, "except wines which were made in the United States."

Senator Gallinger, who is the head and front of every reform movement which reaches the senate, looked with absolute horror at his friend from Alabama. The New Hampshire senator had in front of him in imagination a picture of the five civilized tribes laying in a season's supply of California port and Missouri champagne. He hastened to tell the senate that Indiana could get drunk on the American product as rapidly and as completely as they could on the product of the vineyards of France, and that there were as many warpath possibilities in a bottle of one as in a bottle of the other.

The amendment to the amendment was voted down, and there was just a suspicion of a movement of the body of the Alabama senator to suggest that he was laughing.

BISHOP IN THE FAR NORTH

Clergyman Covers About 25,000 Miles a Year in Arctic Region Visiting Missions.

Nome, Alaska.—Steamboat, canoe, reindeer, dogs and snowshoes are used by Bishop Rowe of Alaska, in covering a bishopric of 600,000 square miles, over which every year is visiting his missions. He travels a distance equal to the circumference of the globe. In cheerful performance of his hardy duties he proves himself one of history's long line of adventurous frontier churchmen—perhaps the last. Carrington Woods says, in telling of the bishop in World's Work, for the frontier will soon be a memory, and Alaska is the end. Peter Trimble Rowe was born in Toronto in 1859, and was tried and tested for his arduous life's work by moving, after his graduation from Trinity college, to an Indian reservation at Garden River, on the northern shore of Lake Huron. Extracts from his diary give some notion of the kinds of difficulties he meets with in his travels. Telling of a trip from Tanana, starting with one companion and a five-dog team to go to Valdez, he says:

"Our sled was loaded with robes, tent, stove, axes, clothing and food for 15 days for dogs and selves. Wind blew the snow like shot in our faces. I kept ahead of the dogs, leading them, finding the way. We had to cross the wide river; the great hummocks made this an ordeal; had to use the ax and break a way for dogs and sled. In the midst of it all the dogs would stop; they could not see; their eyes were closed with the frost; my own were. The time came when the dogs would—could—no longer face the storm. I was forced to make a camp. It was not a spot I would choose for the purpose. The bank of the river was precipitous, high, rocky, yet there was wood. I climbed 100 feet and picked out a spot and made a campfire. Then returned to the sled, unharnessed dogs, get a life line, went up and tied it to a tree near the fire. By means of this we got up our robes and food safely. Here, after something to eat, we made our bed on the snow. It was a night of shivers. Froze our faces."

Here is another night picture further on in the journey:

"All night the wolves howling nearby, and we had to keep our dogs near the fire to prevent their being killed. Bitter iron cold shook the northland. By night the fire roared defiance to a frost which it could not subdue, while dog and man crouched near it for protection from its awful power. When outside the fire's light the heavens were ablaze with moving lights—the aurora borealis of the arctic shone with wonderful brilliancy."

HAVE A LOVE TUTOR IN INDIA

Indian Declares That Women as Well as Men Do the Professing.

London.—Shridhar W. Kotkar, who is advertised as a cultured East India gentleman, is now lecturing in England on "The Art of Making Love in Ancient India," that is, prior to the year 700 A. D. He is attracting the attention of elderly ladies with marriageable daughters, especially girls who are becoming somewhat passé, and may next be heard of in this country, leap year giving to his information and instruction an importance that would otherwise be lacking. "One is most struck," says this guileless Indian, "by the fact that the love affairs of the people of this earlier India, I speak only of the upper classes, were guided and influenced by the professors of love. These were generally elderly men (why not women?) well experienced in the ways of the world, who were paid well for their advice. They taught men how to pay their addresses elegantly and how to make a good impression upon a woman's mind. As women proposed as well as men, the professors devised ingenious means so that the girls or the men, who proposed, would, if refused, still save their dignity. The professors instructed the young women in the art of love making. More often than not the woman took the initiative and let the man know that she loved him."

He thought the present system to be faulty; that while girls are taught all the arts of love by their mamma and aunties, the boys get no advice from their fathers, and, growing up ignorant and inexperienced, become victims to be stolen by the more experienced and intelligent women.

The Largest Bells.

"Great Paul," the bell of St. Paul's Cathedral, in London, weighs nearly 17 tons and is nearly 30 feet around. The first "Big Ben" of Westminster was cast more than 50 years ago and weighed more than 14 tons. But "Big Ben" had a crack and was cast over, losing some weight, and the clapper was made smaller, now being about 600 pounds instead of a ton. The great bell, "Peter of York," cost $10,000, weighs about 13 tons and is 22 feet in diameter.

The largest hanging bell in the world is in the great Buddhist monastery near Canton. It is 18 feet in height and 40 feet in circumference, being cast of solid bronze. This is one of the eight monster bells that were cast by command of Emperor Yang Lo about A. D. 1400. It cost the lives of eight men, who were killed in the process of casting.

Time.

"How long have you been a widow, Mrs. Wood?"

"It will be a year the 4th of next month."

"Dear me! Is it as long as that? How time flies!"

"Oh, do you think so? Well, if you ever have to wait a year to look pleasant when men offer you attentions you'll give up the idea that time is much of a flyer."

Inhuman Fellow.

"Upon what grounds do you seek a divorce?" asked the lawyer, whom she had just retained. "Non-support, cruelty or—"

"Both," she cried, tearfully. "He would not support my passionate longing for a diamond necklace, and if that isn't cruelty I'd like to know!"—Catholic Standard and Times.

SHE WAS WISE.

Miss Cutting Hints—Yes; but don't tell me I'm the only girl you have ever loved.

All He Wanted Was Just Plain Eggs.

A youth entered one of the "ham-and-raw" cafes on Grand avenue and ordered eggs. "Up or over?" just asked the man behind the counter. "I just want eggs," replied the prospective diner. "But do you want them up or over?" repeated the waiter, and again the guest asserted that he desired "only eggs." The third time the party of the second part insisted on his query, whereupon the patron, with a sigh of despair, said "I guess I'll take a steak."—Kansas City Star.

They Saved His Life.

Does it pay to stop your motor car after an accident and go back to see what has happened? Two young motorists on the south side believe it does.

With a green chauffeur these two boys were trying out a new model touring car. They were sitting in the back seat when the greenhorn at the steering wheel gave it a twist and came within an ace of hitting an old man at a crossing. The victim was so shocked that he fell to the pavement, and a crowd gathered in an instant.

Looking back, the motorists decided that things looked bad, but that they had better go back and see whether the old party was killed. Finding him all right, but winded, they took him for a nice ride around the park. So pleased did they make it for him that when they took him home to his wife he introduced them as "The two young men who saved my life." They are now thinking of applying for Carnegie medals.

If You Like a Little Quiet Fun

Ask some pompous person if Grape-Nuts Food helps build the brain.

Chances are you get a withering sneer and a hiss of denunciation.

Then sweetly play with the learned toad.

Ask him to tell you the analysis of brain material and the analysis of Grape-Nuts.

"Don't know? Why, I supposed you based your opinions on exact knowledge instead of pushing out a conclusion like you would a sneeze."

"Well, now your tire is punctured, let's sit down like good friends and repair it."

The bulky materials of brain are water and albumin, but these things cannot blend without a little worker known as Phosphate of Potash, defined as a "mineral salt."

One authority, Geohegan, shows in his analysis of brain, 5.33 per cent total of mineral salts, over one-half being Phosphoric Acid and Potash combined. (Phosphate of Potash) 2.91 per cent.

Beaunis, another authority, shows Phosphoric Acid and Potash (Phosphate of Potash) more than one-half the total mineral salts, being 73.44 per cent in a total of 101.07.

Analysis of Grape-Nuts shows Potassium and Phosphorus (which join and make Phosphate of Potash) is considerable more than one-half of all the mineral salts in the food.

Dr. Geo. W. Carey, an authority on the constituent elements of the body, says: "The gray matter of the brain is controlled entirely by the inorganic cell-salt, Potassium Phosphate (Phosphate of Potash). This salt unites with albumin and by the addition of oxygen creates nerve fluid or the gray matter of the brain. Of course, there is a trace of other salts and other organic matter in nerve fluid, but Potassium Phosphate is the chief factor, and has the power within itself to attract, by its own law of affinity, all things needed to manufacture the elixir of life."

Further on he says: "The beginning and end of the matter is to supply the lacking principle, and in molecular form exactly as nature furnishes it in vegetables, fruits and grain. To supply deficiencies—this is the only law of cure."

Brain is made of Phosphate of Potash as the principal Mineral Salt, added to albumin and water.

Grape-Nuts contains that element as more than one-half of all its mineral salts.

Every day's use of brain wears away a little.

Suppose your kind of food does not contain Phosphate of Potash.

How are you going to rebuild today the worn-out parts of yesterday?

And if you don't, why shouldn't nervous prostration and brain-fag result?

Remember, Mind does not work well on a brain that is even partly broken down from lack of nourishment.

It is true that other food besides Grape-Nuts contains varying quantities of Brain food.

Plain wheat and barley do. But in Grape-Nuts there is a certainty.

And if the elements demanded by Nature, are eaten, the life forces have the needed material to build from.

A healthy brain is important, if one would "do things" in this world.

A man who sneers at "Mind" sneers at the best and least understood part of himself. That part which some folks believe links us to the Infinite.

Mind asks for a healthy brain upon which to act, and Nature has defined a way to make a healthy brain and renew it day by day as it is used up from work of the previous day.

Nature's way to rebuild is by the use of food which supplies the things required.

Her Proposal.
Miss Ethel Barrymore, apropos of last year, told a story at the Colony club, in New York.
"A girl," she said, "looked enviously at a caller one evening and remarked:
"George, as it is leap year—"
"The caller turned rather pale.
"As it is leap year," she continued,
"and you have been calling regularly now four nights a week for a long long time, George I propose—"
"I'm not in a position to marry on my salary," George broke in, hurriedly.
"I know that well, George," the girl pursued, "and so, as it is leap year, I thought I'd propose that you lay off and give some of the more eligible boys a chance."

Peculiarly Mean Swindler.

An elderly man has just been arrested in Berlin, Germany, who had won quite a reputation as a swindler of widows. He was in the habit of visiting the cemeteries and bringing himself under the notice of widows who had come to weep over their husbands' graves. He would engage a bereaved woman in conversation and then pour forth to her his sorrow over the recent loss of his own wife. Acquaintanceships begun in this way invariably grew into friendships, and that resulted in a proposal of marriage from the "widower" to the widow. The man would then borrow a sum of money from his future bride, or pawn some of her late husband's possessions and disappear. Some dozens of widows have been defrauded

PASS DIRECT VOTE

HOUSE ADOPTS RESOLUTION CALLING FOR ELECTION OF SENATORS BY PEOPLE.

STATES' SOLONS MUST RATIFY

Measure Provides for Federal Supervision of All Senatorial Elections—Full Text of Bill—Final Vote Was 237 to 39.

Washington, May 15.—By a vote of 237 to 39 the house passed the resolution Monday declaring for an amendment to the Constitution providing for the direct election of United States senators. The resolution has already passed the senate. The amendment, thus initiated by congress, must be ratified by three-fourths of the state legislatures before it will become law.

The resolution, as modified by the senate, on motion of Senator Brice, provides for federal supervision of the senatorial elections. This provision was fought by members from the south, led by Representative Bartlett of Georgia, who held that federal interference would lead to a return of carpet bagging. As passed the resolution is as follows:

That in lieu of the first paragraph of section 3 of article 1 of the Constitution of the United States, and in lieu of so much of paragraph two of the same section as relates to the filling of vacancies, the following be proposed as an amendment to the Constitution, which shall be valid to all intents and purposes as part of the Constitution when ratified by the legislatures of three-fourths of the states.

The senate of the United States shall be composed of two senators from each state, elected by the people thereof, for six years; and each senator shall have one vote. The electors in each state shall have the qualifications requisite for electors of the most numerous branch of the state legislatures.

When vacancies happen in the representation of any state in the senate the executive authority of such state shall issue writs of election to fill such vacancies, provided that the legislature of any state may empower the executive thereof to make temporary appointments until the people fill the vacancies by election as the legislature may direct.

This amendment shall not be so construed as to affect the election or term of any senator chosen before it becomes valid as part of the Constitution.

There were cheers and applause when the speaker announced that the measure had received the two-thirds majority required for a Constitutional amendment and it was predicted that the reform would be accepted by a sufficient number of states to incorporate it into the Constitution.

The majority of the state legislatures meet next January and each will probably act on the amendment as speedily as possible. In the case of other states there will be no legislatures for another year so it will be at least two years before the voters will have an opportunity to go to the polls and vote for a senator as they would for a congressman, even if ratification is prompt and general.

Representative Bartlett of Georgia started the fight against the resolution which had passed the senate by offering an amendment which provided that congress shall not have the power or the authority to determine the qualifications of electors of United States senators, nor to authorize supervisors, judges or returning boards for those elections, nor to use United States marshall or troops at the polls for the election of senators. Representatives Kahan and Knowland of California were the only Republicans to vote for the Bartlett amendment, which was defeated 189 to 89.

Those voting against the resolution on its final passage were: Adamson, Bartlett, Bell, Broussard, Canler, Collier, Dickson, Dupree, Edwards, Estep, Faison, Flood, Floyd, Glass, Goodwin, Gregg, Hardy, Hay, Harrison (Miss.), Holland, Howard, Hughes (Ga.) Humphreys, Jacobway, Lee, Macdon, Moore, (Tex.), Oldfield, Roddenberry, Saunders, Slison, Slayden, Stephens (Miss.), Tribble, Turnbull, Witherspoon, Blackman, Brantley and Dent.

TWO RIOTERS ARE SHOT

POLICE CHARGE MOB OF 2,000 AT SCRANTON, PA.

Striking Miners Rush Fire Room, Drag Out Miners and Beat Them.

Scranton, Pa., May 12.—Cruzaga, breaker, of the Delaware, Lackawanna & Western company, in North Scranton, formed the background of a riotous demonstration last Friday.

Foreign workmen were leaders among the crowd of two thousand men and boys that assembled near the breaker to keep away men who were going to the necessary work. More than thirty women who joined in mob violence were arrested. A number of foreigners and policemen were injured.

Some shots were fired by the police as Policemen Peter Marker and Louis Davis fell, both hands battered by cobblestones. The state troopers then rode into the crowd, firing their revolvers. Mike Fincka and another foreigner dropped to the ground, the former shot through the abdomen, the latter in the leg. The crowd broke and ran, and the police combined to drive them on toward the houses.

Springfield, Ill., May 12.—A disagreement between foreign and American miners at Bend, Macoupin county, as to whether they should go to work without awaiting the result of the referendum vote now being taken in the state, resulted in one man being fatally injured and four others wounded Friday.

About 500 American miners from Gillespie, who were going to work in mine No. 3, were attacked by a similar number of foreign miners from Bend, who work in mine No. 2. Shots were exchanged between the two bodies, with the above result.

TOBACCO USER IS BARRED

Stormy Debate Over Question in Methodist Conference at Minneapolis, Minn.

Minneapolis, Minn., May 10.—A stormy debate arose in the Methodist general conference here Wednesday over the use of tobacco by officials high in office. A resolution was presented by Dr. Robert Stephens, Danville, Ill., to the effect, "That it is the sense of this general conference that no person should be elected to any office within the gift of the conference who uses tobacco in any of its forms."

A vigorous debate ensued. Dr. Robert Watt of Delaware, while favoring the motion, declared that it was a dangerous and unwise thing to try to regulate conduct by rules. Doctor Gettys of Nebraska retorted that big corporations passed on the conduct of its employees, and the conference had the same right. Motions to defer to other committees were defeated. Dr. James Bewe of Chicago created much amusement by a motion to refer the matter to the committee on education.

Recommendations were adopted, under the direction of Rev. W. S. Chinn, colored delegate from Louisiana, that the home missionary society provide aid to ministers and their people who had suffered by thousands in the recent floods in the south.

In the city of Guadalajara, twelve distinct shocks were felt and considerable damage was done.

More than a half million dollars of damage, including the total destruction of a Catholic church, is reported from the town of Queretel. Following the quakes, the volcano became active.

The observatory here predicts that Mexico City will be visited by a disastrous earthquake within twelve hours.

WOMAN'S WIT WINS

COWS CONDEMNED ARE SAID TO BE O. K'D AT STOCK YARDS BY INSPECTORS.

MRS. DURAND'S LITTLE JOKE

Says Arthur Meeker Used Government Beef Inspection in an Effort to Destroy Her Dairy Business—Regarded Her as a Rival.

Washington, May 12.—The existence of a conspiracy between the beef packers and the government meat inspection service was alleged here last Friday when Mrs. Scott Durand, a noted society leader and philanthropist of Chicago, filed sensational evidence with Representative Nelson of Wisconsin in a statement relating how Arthur Meeker of Chicago, general manager of Armour & Co. and himself a clubman and society leader known in two continents, utilized the meat inspection service of the United States department of agriculture in an effort to put her famous dairy, Crabtree Farm, out of existence because he regarded her as a rival.

In addition, the statement of Mrs. Durand shows how, by her woman's wit, she is alleged to have trapped the government meat inspectors sent by Meeker to condemn her herd, and how they actually inspected and passed for Armour & Co.'s warehouses cows which they had condemned as tubercular on her farm. So important is the testimony, offered by Mrs. Durand that she has been summoned as a witness, and she will take the stand early next week.

SHRINERS NAME OFFICERS

Council Will Meet Next Year at Dallas, Tex., on May 13 and 14—Officials Chosen.

Los Angeles, Cal., May 10.—Southern Shriners scored a decisive victory at the meeting of the imperial council here Wednesday by electing Ernest A. May 13 and 14, 1913, were named as the dates for the sessions of the convention in the Texas city.

Cutts is in direct line for the office of imperial potentate, and in twelve years will automatically succeed to that position.

William J. Cunningham of Baltimore was chosen as the next imperial potentate.

SAYS HE WAS TRAPPED

WITNESS REPUDIATES STATEMENTS IN ARCHBOLD CASE.

Scranton, Pa., Man Admits Judge Pays His Carfare to and Expenses in Washington.

Washington, May 11.—At the inquiry into charges of misconduct against Judge Robert W. Archbald of the commerce court, before the house judiciary committee which is to determine whether impeachment proceedings shall be brought against the jurist, Edward J. Williams of Scranton, Pa., a government witness, admitted the reason he obtained a letter from Judge Archbald in the Erie culm bank transaction was that he realized many railroad cases were in Judge Archbald's court and that Captain May, who controlled the coal property, was a railroad man.

In connection with the testimony, Williams denied all knowledge of the contents of signed statements secured from him by the department of justice. In these statements he implicated Judge Archbald in various coal land deals with the Erie & Lehigh railroad.

Speaking of his visit to Washington at the time the statements are alleged to have been made, Williams said:

"I came hurriedly in response to a telegram from William P. C. Borland. I was met, I think, by Mr. Borland, and we had a good lunch. Then they took me to the department of justice, and the attorney general questioned me. Later I was given some papers to sign. I don't know what was in all those papers. After that I went back to Scranton, but before I left Borland told him he had betrayed me. Borland paid my expenses to Washington on that trip."

Thomas was one of the two or three men who did not flee from the court room when the firing began, but remained to care for the injured.

Many character witnesses testified that they had found Floyd Allen respectable and honest in business dealings.

FAVORS NO CHURCH

PRESIDENT TAFT STRENUOUSLY DENIES GIVING PREFERENCE TO ROMAN CATHOLICS.

CONSPIRACY CHARGE IS MADE

Did Not Send Wireless Welcome to Newly Appointed Apostolic Delegate—Says Purpose Is to Arouse Religious Prejudice Against Him.

Washington, May 14.—On Sunday the following statement was issued from the White House:

"Among the invidious methods of attack pursued by some against me, is the attempt to arouse religious prejudice on the charge that I am in some manner unduly favoring the Roman Catholic church. It has been my official purpose first, as the governor general of the Philippines; second, as secretary of war, and third, as president, to encourage every church as far as possible where this does not involve invidious distinctions, and does not depart from the rule which separates our state from official relations to all churches. I have unduly favored no church, but have treated them all with absolute impartiality.

"In 1902 I visited Rome and conferred with Pope Leo XIII. in an attempt to settle the friar land controversy, which had arisen in the Philippines while I was governor general, and after a time I succeeded in doing so. When last March my aide, Major Butt, set out on a trip solely for his health and proposed to visit Rome he asked me for a letter of introduction to the present pope that he might have the privilege of an audience, and I gave him such a letter. The letter contained nothing but a statement of who Major Butt was and an expression for the hope that he might have the honor of being received. The only note or letter from the pope or any representative of his in answer to this letter of introduction which I have received is a cablegram of condolence for all concerned sent by Cardinal Merry del Val by direction of the pope at the time of the Titanic disaster and making an inquiry as to the fate of Major Butt, to which I replied expressing my thanks and giving the fact.

"The evidence that there is a conspiracy for the purpose of arousing religious prejudice against me is shown by the fact that at the instance of some one unknown to me, it was reported in a great many very respectable newspapers that I sent a message of welcome and congratulations to the newly appointed apostolic delegate by wireless to the incoming steamer which was bearing him to New York. No such message was sent by me, or by anyone by my authority. Denial of the published report was issued from the White House, but the denial has obtained no publicity.

AID IS SOUGHT FOR INDIANS

Catawbas of South Carolina Have Always Been Friendly to the Whites.

In South Carolina is the earliest civilized tribe of Indians in the United States, and they are not the wards of the government. These are the Catawbas, and they number approximately 100.

State Senator W. H. Stewart of South Carolina is in Washington to confer with the congressional delegation of that state with the view of having these Indians placed on the same basis as all other red men, and it is probable that a bill will shortly be introduced to this end.

"It is strange, perhaps, that the Catawba Indians, who have been wards of the state of South Carolina for many years should never have received any recognition from the national government," said Senator Stewart, "but it is a fact, nevertheless, that the Catawbas are the only American Indians, so far as my knowledge goes, that have always been friends of the white man. They never took the blood of a white man, and during all the early struggles of the whites against the Indians the Catawbas remained true. They were in what is now South Carolina when the first whites reached that territory, and they have remained there.

"For a long time the Cherokees occupied the same territory, and there was continual strife between the two tribes, for the Cherokees were among the most bloodthirsty tribes on this continent. In all the struggles the Catawbas took sides with the settlers against the Cherokees. The latter Indians massacred many of the settlers in South Carolina.

"The state government, after having taken care of these Indians for so many years, now is seeking to have the national government make provision for them, so that they can, in common with other Indians, have land allotted to them and become American citizens, which is only just and fair."—Washington Post.

SYNOPSIS.

Elam Harnish, known all through Alaska as "Burning Daylight," celebrates his birthday with a crowd of miners at the Circle City "Tivoli." The dance leads to heavy gambling, in which over $100,000 is staked. Harnish loses his money and his mine but wins the mail contract. He starts on his mail trip with dogs and sledges, telling his friends that he will be in the big Yukon gold strike at the start. Burning Daylight makes a sensational raid run across country with the mail, appears at the Tivoli and is now ready to join his friends in a dash to the new gold fields. Deciding that gold will be found in the up-river district Harnish buys two tons of flour, which he declares will be worth its weight in gold, but when he arrives with his flour he finds the big flat desolate. A contraband discoverers gold and Daylight reaps a rich harvest. He goes to Dawson, becomes the most prominent figure in the Klondike and defeats a combination of capitalists in a vast mining deal. He returns to civilization, and amid the bewildering complications of high finance, Daylight finds that he has been led to invest his eleven millions in a manipulated scheme. He goes to New York.

CHAPTER VIII.—Continued.

Then the grin died away, and his face grew bleak and serious. Leaving out his interests in the several Western reclamation projects (which were still assessing heavily), he was a ruined man. But harder hit than this was his pride. He had been so easy. They had gold-bricked him, and he had nothing to show for it. The simplest farmer would have had documents, while he had nothing but a gentleman's agreement, and a verbal one at that. Gentleman's agreement! He snorted over it. John Dowsett's voice, just as he had heard it in the telephone receiver, sounded in his ears the words, "On my honor as a gentleman." They were sneaky-thieves and swindlers, that was what they were, and they had given him the double-cross. The newspapers were right. He had come to New York to be trimmed, and Messrs. Dowsett, Letton and Guggenhammer had done it. He was a little fish, and they had played with him ten days—ample time in which to swallow him, along with his eleven millions. Of course, they had been unloading on him all the time, and now they were buying Ward Valley back for a song ere the market righted itself.

And Daylight sat and consumed cocktails and saw back in his life to Alaska, and lived over the grim years in which he had battled for his eleven millions. For awhile murder ate at his heart, and wild ideas and sketchy plans of killing his betrayers flashed through his mind. Daylight unlocked his grip and took out his automatic pistol—a big Colt's 44. He released the safety catch with his thumb, and, operating the sliding outer barrel, ran the contents of the clip through the mechanism. The eight cartridges slid out in a stream. He refilled the clip, threw a cartridge into the chamber, and with the trigger at full cock, thrust up the safety catch. He shoved the weapon into the side pocket of his coat, ordered another Martini, and resumed his seat.

At ten o'clock he arose and porched over the city directory. Then he put on his shoes, took a cab, and departed into the night. Twice he changed cabs, and finally fetched up at the night office of a detective agency. He supposed the thing himself, laid down money in advance in profuse quantities, selected the six men he needed, and gave them their instructions. Never, for so simple a task, had they been so well paid; for to each in addition to office charges, he gave a five-hundred-dollar bill, with the promise of another if he succeeded. Some time next day, he was convinced, if not sooner, his three silent partners would come together. To each one two of his detectives were to be attached. Time and place was all he wanted to learn.

"Now It's My Deal, and I'm Going to See if I Can Hold Them Four Aces."

"Stop at nothing, boys," were his final instructions. "I must have this information. Whatever you do, whatever happens, I'll see you through."

Returning to his hotel, he changed cabs as before, went up to his room, and with one more cocktail for a nightcap, went to bed and to sleep. In the morning he dressed and shaved, ordered breakfast and the newspapers sent up, and waited. But he did not drink. By nine o'clock his telephone began to ring and the reports to come in. Nathaniel Letton was taking the train at Tarrytown. John Dowsett was coming down by the subway. Leon Guggenhammer had not stirred yet, though he was assuredly within. And in this fashion, with a map of the city spread out before him, Daylight followed the movements of his three men as they drew together. Nathaniel Letton was at his office in the Mutual-Solander Building. Next arrived Guggenhammer. Dowsett was still in his own offices. But at eleven came the word that he also had arrived, and several minutes later Daylight was in a hired motor-car and speeding for the Mutual-Solander Building.

CHAPTER IX.

Nathaniel Letton was talking when the door opened; he ceased, and with his two companions gazed with controlled perturbation at Burning Daylight striding into the room. The free, swinging movements of the trail-traveler were unconsciously exaggerated in that stride of his. In truth, it seemed to him that he felt the trail beneath his feet.

"Howdy, gentlemen, howdy," he remarked, ignoring the unnatural calm with which they greeted his entrance. He shook hands with them in turn, striding from one to another and gripping their hands so heartily that Nathaniel Letton could not forbear to wince. Daylight flung himself into a massive chair and sprawled lazily, with an appearance of fatigue. The leather grip he had brought into the room he dropped carelessly beside him on the floor.

"I've sure been going some," he sighed. "We sure trimmed them beautifully. It was real slick. And the beauty of the play never dawned on me till the very end. It was pure and simple knock down and drag out. And the way they fell for it was amazing."

Letton made a dry sound in his throat. Dowsett sat quietly and waited, while Leon Guggenhammer struggled into articulation.

"You certainly have raised Cain," he said.

Daylight's black eyes flashed in a pleasant way.

"Didn't I, though!" he proclaimed, jubilantly. "And didn't we fool 'em! I was footloose and fancy-free. I never dreamed they would be that easy."

"And now," he went on, not permitting the pause to grow awkward, "we all might as well have an accounting. I'm pullin' West this afternoon at that blamed Twentieth Century." He tugged at his grip, got it open, and dipped into it with both his hands. "But don't forget, boys, when you-all want me to hornswoggle Wall Street another fluster, all you-all have to do is whisper the word. I'll sure be right there with the goods."

His hands emerged, clutching a great mass of stubs, check-books, and brokers' receipts. These he deposited in a heap on the big table, and dipping again, he fished out the stragglers and added them to the pile. He consulted a slip of paper, drawn from his coat pocket, and read aloud:

"Ten million twenty-seven thousand and forty-two dollars and sixty-eight cents is my figurin on my expense. Of course that's taken from the winnings before we-all get to figurin on the whack-up. Where's your figurin? It must a' been a mighty big clean-up."

The three men looked their bewilderment at one another. The man was a bigger fool than they had imagined, or else he was playing a game which they could not divine.

Nathaniel Letton moistened his lips and spoke up.

"It will take some hours yet, Mr. Harnish, before the full accounting can be made. Mr. Howison is at work upon it now. We—ah—as you say, it has been a gratifying clean-up. Suppose we have lunch together and talk it over. I'll have the clerks work through the noon hour so that you will have ample time to catch your train."

Dowsett and Guggenhammer manifested a relief that was almost obvious. The situation was clearing. It was disconcerting, under the circumstances, to be sent in the same room with this heavy-muscled, Indian-like man whom they had robbed. They remembered unpleasantly the many stories of his strength and recklessness. If Letton could only put him off long enough for them to escape into the polished world outside the office door, all would be well; and Daylight showed all the signs of being put off.

"I'm real glad to hear that," he said. "I don't want to miss that train, and you-all have done me proud, gentlemen, letting me in on this deal. I just do appreciate it without being able to express my feelings. But I am sure almighty curious, and I'd like terrible to know, Mr. Letton, what your figures of our winning is. Can you-all give me a rough estimate?"

Nathaniel Letton did not look appealingly at his two friends, but in the brief pause they felt that appeal pass out from him. Dowsett, of sterner mold than the others, began to divine that the Klondiker was playing. But the other two were still under the blandishment of his child-like lameness.

"It is extremely—or difficult," Leon Guggenhammer began. "You see, Ward Valley has fluctuated so, er—"

"That no estimate can possibly be made in advance," Letton supplemented.

"Approximate it, approximate it," Daylight counseled, cheerfully. "It don't hurt if you-all are a million out one side or the other. The figures'll straighten that up. But I'm that curious I'm just itching all over. What d'ye say?"

"Why continue to play at cross purposes?" Dowsett demanded abruptly and coldly. "Let us have the explanation here and now. Mr. Harnish is laboring under a false impression, and he should be set straight."

By this time Letton was stiffened by the attitude Dowsett had taken, and his answer was prompt and definite.

"I fear you are under a misapprehension, Mr. Harnish. There are no winnings to be divided with you. Now don't get excited, I beg of you. I have but to press this button."

Far from excited, Daylight had all the seeming of being stunned. He looked at Dowsett and murmured:

"It was your deal, all right, and you-all had a right to do your best. And you done it—cleaned me out slick-orn-a-whistle."

He gazed at the heap on the table with an air of stupefaction.

"And that ain't worth the paper it's written on. God dast it, you-all can sure deal 'em round when you get a chance. Oh, no, I ain't a-kidding. It was your deal, and you-all certainly done me, and a man ain't half a man that squeals on another man's deal. And now the hand is played out, and the cards are on the table, and the deal's over, but—"

His hand, dipping swiftly into his inside breast pocket, appeared with the big Colt's automatic.

"As I was saying, the old deal's finished. Now it's my deal, and I'm a-going to see if I can hold them four aces."

"Take your hand away, you whitted seculchre!" he cried sharply.

Nathaniel Letton's hand, creeping toward the push-button on the desk, was abruptly arrested.

"Change curs," Daylight commanded. "Take that chair over there, you gangrene-livered skunk. Jump, or I'll make you leak till folks'll think your father was a water hydrant and your mother a sprinkling-cart. You-all move your chair alongside, Guggenhammer; and you-all Dowsett, sit right there, while I just irreverently explain the virtues of this here automatic. She's loaded for big game and she goes off eight times. She's a sure humor when she gets started."

"Preliminary remarks being over, I now proceed to deal. Remember, I ain't making no remarks about your deal. You done your darndest, and it was all right. But this is my deal, and it's up to me to do my darndest. In the first place, you-all know me. I'm Burning Daylight—savvy? Ain't afraid of God, devil, death, nor destruction. Them's my four aces, and they sure copper your boys. Look at that there living skeleton. Letton, you're sure afraid to die. Your bones is all rattling together you're that scared. And look at that fat Jew there. This little weapon's sure put the fear of God in his heart. He's yellow as a sick persimmon. Dowsett, you're a cool one. You-all ain't batted an eye nor turned a hair. That's because you're great on arithmetic. And that makes you-all dead easy in this deal of mine. You're sitting there and adding two and two together, and you-all know I sure got you skinned. You know me, and that I ain't afraid of nothing. And you-all adds up all your money, and knows you ain't a-going to die if you can help it."

"I'll see you hanged," was Dowsett's retort.

"Not by a damned sight. When the fun starts, you're the first I plug. I'll hang all right, but you-all won't live to see it. You-all die here and now while I'll do subject to the law's delay—savvy? Being dead, with grass growing out of your carcasses, you won't know when I hang, but I'll sure have the pleasure a long time of knowing you-all beat me to it."

"You surely won't kill us," Letton asked in a quaver, this voice.

Daylight shook his head.

"It's sure too expensive. You-all ain't worth it. I'd sooner have my chips back. And I guess you-all'd sooner give my chips back than go to the dead-house."

A long silence followed.

"Well, I've done dealt. It's up to you-all to play. But while you're deliberating, I want to give you-all warning: If that door opens and any one of you cusses lets on there's anything unusual, right here and then I sure start plugging. They ain't a soul I got out of the room except foot first."

Original Suffragette.

Mrs. Johanne Moyer, the first Danish woman to speak from a platform in behalf of woman suffrage, attended the Universal Race congress recently held in London as the delegate to the Peace Society of Copenhagen. As soon as the congress closed Mrs. Moyer began an inquiry in behalf of the Danish government to ascertain the effect that social and political work in England has had on women. In 1870 Mrs. Moyer founded the first organization for the betterment of women in Denmark.

MAKES DARING TRIP

W. P. Edwards of Reclamation Service Has Thrilling Adventure.

Government Enabled to Build Huge Tunnel Five Miles Long from Gunnison Canyon as Result of Remarkable Feat.

Denver, Colo.—One of the most daring feats that has been accredited to the men of the reclamation service in their battles of converting the deserts of the west into productive farms was the original trip through the swift waters of the Gunnison canyon.

In the years previous to the time when the reclamation service went into Colorado and determined upon the diversion of the waters of the Gunnison river, that the arid lands of the Uncompahgre project might be reclaimed, man had never passed alive through the Gunnison canyon. There were many tales of adventurous Indians and white men who had attempted the dangers of this canyon, but none of them had succeeded and lived to tell the tale.

W. P. Edwards was the first man to accomplish this feat. He did it on a rubber mattress, inflated with air. Boarding his raft at the headwaters of the Gunnison, he started on the wild ride through its canyon with the idea of prospecting for a possible opportunity to divert its waters and get them upon the desert.

This raft of air and rubber was believed to be immune to the shocks that it would meet in plunging headlong down the currents of this stream. To a large extent, it proved worthy of the confidence that was placed in it. To be sure, it lost upon occasion much of the form which it had in the beginning. It was punctured and mended and refilled on many occasions. At times it became merely a flabby bag that was thrown over the shoulder of the voyager as he waded down stream over the rapids. At other times it became merely a life-preserver that kept him afloat in deep eddies.

At still other times the raft and its operator clung to the sides of rocks and fought the currents in the face of the danger of going over a cataract into sudden death. But in the end, after passing many dangers, W. P. Edwards and his raft came out of the mountain gorge to where the river spreads out into a quiet stream on the plains below.

When Edwards reached the habitations of man he had with him the data which was the foundation upon which has been based one of the most spectacular engineering feats on record. For the reclamation service has built wagon roads into this precipitous canyon and from a point at its bottom has driven a great tunnel for five miles through solid rock and through that tunnel has diverted the frothing waters and set them to the business of making crops grow upon the desert.

WOMAN LOSES HER VOICE

Trainer of Wild Beasts in Terror When Caged Grizzly Bear Attacks Her Husband.

San Francisco.—Mme. Ricardo, a lion trainer, known as the "singing girl in the tiger's den," is speechless as the result of an attack upon her husband by a bear at Oakland. The woman was one of the few in the gathering at the circus who realized her husband's peril.

When the grizzly bore her husband to the ground the woman screamed for assistance. Ricardo remained quiet, covering his head and face with his arms.

Mme. Ricardo attempted to sing the next day, but found that she had lost her voice. Physicians fear it may not return. Ricardo escaped injury.

Another suggested cause of glacial periods is that they have been due to the shifting of the milky way, such as is known to have occurred. Assuming that much of the earth's heat comes from the stars, Dr. Rudolf Spitteler finds that the change of position in relation to the milky way might have given a different distribution of temperature from that existing at the present time. The stars are not only crowded in the region of the milky way, but many of them are of the hottest type.

KNOWS NOW

Doctor Was Fooled by His Own Case For a Time.

It's easy to understand how ordinary people get fooled by coffee when doctors themselves sometimes forget the facts.

A physician speaks of his own experience:

"I had used coffee for years and really did not exactly believe it was injuring me although I had palpitation of the heart every day. (Tea contains caffeine—the same drug found in coffee—and is just as harmful as coffee.)"

"Finally one day a severe and almost fatal attack of heart trouble frightened me and I gave up both tea and coffee, using Postum instead, and since that time I have had absolutely no heart palpitation except on one or two occasions when I tried a small quantity of coffee, which caused severe irritation and proved to me I must let it alone."

"When we began using Postum it seemed weak—that was because we did not make it according to directions—but now we put a little bit of butter in the pot when boiling and allow the Postum to boil full 15 minutes which gives it the proper rich flavor and the deep brown color."

"I have advised a great many of my friends and patients to leave off coffee and drink Postum, in fact I daily give this advice." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

Many thousands of physicians use Postum in place of tea and coffee in their own homes and prescribe it to patients.

"There's a reason," and it is explained in the little book, "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs.

Always Matter of Growth. The leader, like the poet, must be born, and then born again, for the spirit must quicken the spirit, and life inspire life, before knowledge can grow to wisdom.—Alice Freeman Palmer.

Education's Limitation. Education is only like good culture, it changes the size, but not the sort.—A. Beecher.

Wonderful Power of Music. The meaning of song goes deep. Who is there in logical words can express the effect music has on us? A kind of inarticulate, unfathomable speech, which leads us to the edges of the infinite, and lets us for a moment gaze into that.—Curlye.

Natural Dividing Line. Nature herself has drawn a dividing line between what is appropriate for men and what for women. There is no question of superiority or inferiority.—Exchange.

Deadly Glasses.

A contrast to the Venetian glasses which were popularly supposed to fly to pieces if poisoned liquor were poured into them, were glasses which poisoned all who drank from them. The poison was crystallized at the bottom of the glass, from which it was indistinguishable, and as it dissolved very slowly it could be used many times with deadly effect. Some such glasses can be seen at the British museum.

Old Customs In Synagogues.

When the annual reading of the Book of Esther takes place in the synagogues as a prelude to the festival of Purim the children shake their rattles (Haman "hoppers") vigorously every time the name of Haman, who was counselor of King Ahasuerus, monarch of ancient Persia, appears in the book. This quaint custom has been observed from time immemorial.—London Evening Standard.

What The Rambler 10,000 Mile Guarantee Means

This map gives you a graphic idea of what the Rambler guarantee means to you in point of mileage.

THIS guarantee is backed by every one of our Rambler dealers and branches. One of them is located nearby and is perhaps known to you.

Back of them is a factory employing eighteen hundred men, with a floor area of twenty acres and producing ninety-six per cent of the parts that go to make up this car.

This factory has produced twenty-two thousand Rambler motor cars and the average cost for repair parts on each one of these cars last year was only twelve dollars and ninety cents.

Some of these cars have been in use eleven years. One-half of them have been in use five years or more. These are the facts which warrant our confidence in the Rambler to the extent of giving the signed guarantee for ten thousand miles.

The Cross Country sales to date are three times those of last year.

See the car and you will learn the first reason—its appearance.

Ride in the car and you will know the second reason—its comfort.

Ask your banker about the stability of this company—his answer is the third reason.

This ten thousand mile guarantee is the fourth reason. Appearance, comfort, stability and the 10,000 mile guarantee.

Are not these reasons enough?

Write your name and address on the coupon below and forward it to us immediately that we may send you full information.
